INTERFACES LINKING SCIENCE, SOCIETY AND DECISION-MAKERS TO SHAPE FUTURE RURAL POLICIES

- Sustainable Hub to Engage into Rural Policies with Actors (SHERPA) was a four-year project (2019-2023) with 17 partners funded by the Horizon 2020 programme. Its aim was to gather knowledge that contributes to the formulation of recommendations for future policies relevant to EU rural areas, by creating a Science-Society-Policy interface which provides a hub for knowledge and policy.

GOVERNANCE IN RURAL AREAS

GREECE (ALL THREE MAPS)

Greece has three Multi-Actor Platforms (MAPs), focused on the region of Peloponnese, Western Greece and Attica. They are all regional platforms consisting of representatives of farmers- and agri-organisations, businesses, universities, civil society and regional government members.

Greece wants to make further progress on ecological, social and economic dimensions. Active stakeholder participation and innovative technologies are needed to monitor and evaluate related intervention outcomes. Greece is, however, below the EU average in the level of digitalisation. Further developing (e-)governance and stakeholder involvement in rural policymaking would be desirable.

1. Pathways to Tackling Climate Change in Rural Areas

1.1. Key scientific evidence

Several climatic parameters and effects relating to the countries around the Mediterranean basin have been reported by the European Environment Agency (ESA, 2017) including: (i) the increase of extreme high temperatures; (ii) a decrease in rainfalls and river flow; (iii) increased competition for water use; (iv) a significant decline in crop yields; (v) increased risks for livestock production; (vi) an increase in mortality rates due to heat waves; (vii) reduced capacity in energy production; (viii) increased energy consumption for cooling purposes during heat waves; and (x) time shifts in summer tourism. Moreover, climate change will trigger risks (e.g. droughts, forest fires and biodiversity loss) affecting negatively the environment and the most economic sectors.

According to simulations based on climatic models [1], the average annual temperature, both at the short- and medium-term, is expected to increase. Specifically, in Greece (Figure 1) the highest increase in average annual temperatures is estimated to take place during the period 2046-2065 (up to 2.6°C).
